Executive Summary of GTFF’s Report

1) UO does not pay its 1,400+ Graduate Employees competitively. GE wages have a negative impact on graduate recruitment, retention, and research.

2) The current campus climate and economic conditions of graduate study at UO are not conducive to graduate success and retention.
UO’s GE Wages are Not Competitive

- UO’s current min GE salary compared to min salaries at 31 Public AAU Insititutions that UO benchmarks itself against
- When comparing graduate salaries and the corresponding local cost of living*, UO on average falls ~30% behind
- Chart show projected AY 25-26 salaries under “Final Offer” proposals (by which point, many peers will give further raises)

*MIT Living Wage Calculator

When considering what percentage of living wage is met by min graduate salaries at 32 peer universities, UO ranks at the bottom.
Wage Impacts on Recruitment & Research

Investing in graduate working conditions will improve research recruitment, output, and quality, as well as UO’s institutional ranking and future funding. 186 UO faculty members have signed a letter in support of increased funding for GE labor.

Source: Zhang et al. “Labor advantages drive the greater productivity of faculty at elite universities” (2022)

Wage Impacts on Grad Success & Retention

- Beyond recruitment, current GE wages harm the UO’s ability to retain graduates and enable graduate success.

- According to the UO’s 2022 IDEAL Climate Survey, 52% of Graduate Employees regularly think about leaving the UO to work somewhere else.

- Underrepresented groups of graduates are least likely to have the personal resources and support networks needed to succeed under current financial conditions.
Impact of GE Wages on DEI Goals

UO can make significant progress towards meeting institutional equity objectives by investing in graduate working conditions. Doing so will improve recruitment, retention, and overall success of underrepresented groups in UO’s graduate programs.

Research shows that competitive graduate compensation “can increase the number and racial/ethnic diversity of both program applicants and enrollees” (3). Ecton et al. “If You Fund Them, Will They Come? Implications From a PhD Fellowship Program on Racial/Ethnic Student Diversity” (2021).
Recommendations for Trustees

1. Investing seriously in GEs is an investment in UO’s future success as an educational institution.

2. By improving economic conditions for GEs, UO can meet research, reputation, and DEI goals.

3. Graduate wages are an urgent, actionable problem that can be resolved by UO this year.

Questions for the Trustees’ Response

What is the UO’s institutional plan for addressing the three interrelated problems GTFF has identified in relation to graduate employment and institutional sustainability:

1. The deterioration to the UO’s overall ability to competitively recruit and retain graduate student employees in comparison to peer institutions;

2. The fact that current graduate working/living conditions do not enable the outcomes of human-centered excellence and sustainability in education and research, as described by UO’s Mission Statement;

3. The negative impact these combined factors have on the UO’s ability to achieve long-term Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion objectives?
Executive Summary: Graduate Employment and Institutional Sustainability
GTFF Report to University of Oregon Board of Trustees (December 5, 2023)

Report Summary: The University of Oregon faces a significant, long-term threat to its institutional mission and reputation because of the decreasing competitiveness and sustainability of its graduate programs. Economic conditions have dramatically shifted within the US economy over the last several years, causing historic shifts to the economics of higher education and local cost of living [1]. In 2023, Graduate Employees are not paid competitively compared to peer institutions [2]. UO's wages for GEs are harmful to UO's ability to recruit competitive graduate students, as well as harmful to the retention and success of current graduates [3]. Underrepresented groups of graduates are least likely to have the personal resources and support networks to attain success under the current financial conditions [4].

If left unaddressed, the seriously deteriorating working conditions for GEs will damage UO's overall quality of education, research output, DEI objectives, and program reputation for years to come. GE wages are an urgent, actionable issue that can be resolved by UO this year. By improving economic conditions for GEs, UO can meet key goals: excellence in research and teaching, reputational growth, and improved outcomes for DEI initiatives.

Research and Data:
1. In 2023, Eugene is ranked #25 among the most expensive US cities. A “living wage” income (0 dependents, before tax) in Eugene, OR is $35,973/yr, or $2,998/month (MIT Living Wage). According to UO’s employment data, the highest paid GE salary at the UO is $2,812, and the lowest is $778/month. Not a single GE makes a living wage.
2. UO ranks at the bottom of 31 peer institutions when evaluated in terms of the percent of a living wage being met by graduate worker salaries. Mannix, Ben: “Recruitment & Retention: A Guide to Competitive Graduate Salaries” (2023).
3. According to UO’s 2022 IDEAL Climate Survey, 52% of Graduate Employees regularly think about leaving UO to work somewhere else (10).

Other Critical Institutional Context:
- Over 1,400 Graduate Employees teach, research, and contribute in other essential ways to the fulfillment of the UO’s mission, purpose, and overall reputation. More than 1,100 of those GEs are members of the Graduate Teaching Fellows Federation labor union.
- Trustees have responsibility for the overall management of the University of Oregon, oversight of institutional sustainability, and the fulfillment of the UO’s stated mission and purpose: “[to] strive for excellence in teaching, research, artistic expression, and the generation, dissemination, preservation, and application of knowledge. We are devoted to educating the whole person, and to fostering the next generation of transformational leaders.” Additionally, the Mission states that UO values “diversity and seek[s] to foster equity and inclusion in a welcoming, safe, and respectful community"
GTFF’s Recommendations for Trustees:

- UO can increase research recruitment, output, and quality by investing in graduate working conditions; this will improve UO’s institutional ranking [5] and future funding [6]. More than 186 UO faculty members have signed a letter in support of GE funding.
- UO can make significant progress towards meeting institutional equity objectives by investing in graduate working conditions. Doing so would directly improve UO’s ability to recruit and retain graduates from underrepresented and marginalized groups. Underrepresented groups of graduates are least likely to have the personal resources and support networks to attain success in graduate programs under the current financial conditions. [7] These financial conditions are also particularly harmful to the success of GEs with dependents and international GEs who face work visa restrictions [8].
- In order to fulfill UO’s mission to “strive for excellence” in teaching and research, as well as “educating the whole person” and “fostering the next generation of transformational leaders”, UO must invest seriously in its graduate workers. GEs do UO’s teaching and research, and GEs will be the next generation of leaders in higher education.

Research and Data:

6. UO’s projected income for 2023-2024 includes approximately $294 million from research grants. Graduate Employees work directly on and under these research grants, and competitive graduate recruitment/retention is essential to the UO’s ability to win grants.

8. Visas prevent International GEs from earning income off-campus. For many international GEs, their sole income is a 9-month GE salary capped at a maximum 0.49 FTE. International GEs are disproportionately students of color compared to domestic GEs, and UO has significantly increased its recruitment of international GEs in recent years. Out of 1,432 GEs total currently at the UO, 411 GEs (28.3%) are International GEs.

Key Question for Trustees to Research and Respond to (per SB273):

What is the UO’s institutional plan for addressing the three interrelated problems GTFF has identified in relation to graduate employment and institutional sustainability:

1. The deterioration to the UO’s overall ability to competitively recruit and retain graduates in comparison to peer institutions;
2. The fact that current graduate working/living conditions do not enable human-centered excellence and sustainability in education and research, as stated in UO’s Mission;
3. The negative impact these combined factors have on the UO’s ability to achieve long-term Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion objectives?
SUCCESSES

STUDENT ENGAGEMENT
ASUO put on more engagement events this fall term than any term in the past ten years. These events impacted thousands of students and significantly increased student awareness of ASUO on campus. Highlights included the Men’s Health Fair with over 250 student interactions, Game Day Fridays with over 800 t-shirts distributed and thousands of student interactions, and the Thermal Reheating Student Forum with over 100 students in attendance. The overwhelmingly positive reaction from students regarding ASUO’s heightened engagement has affirmed the value of these events and inspired ASUO to continue to focus on this type of student outreach.

PARTNERSHIP WITH UNIVERSITY OF OREGON PORTLAND CAMPUS
As part of an ongoing project to increase access to I-Fee resources on the University of Oregon's Portland campus, ASUO worked with the Dean of Students Office to coordinate basic needs funding for students on the Portland campus. These funds will provide a valuable basic needs resource by making a student food pantry accessible to all UO Portland students.

STATE-LEVEL ADVOCACY
During November Legislative Days, the ASUO Advocacy Team visited Salem to talk with state legislators about campus hunger, textbook affordability, and the student emergency needs package. Working alongside Oregon State University, Southern Oregon University, Eastern Oregon University, and Western Oregon University, ASUO is coordinating our advocacy around this bicameral, bipartisan package for one-time funding to support Oregon’s Basic Needs Navigators and Textbook Affordability Program.
CAMPUS SAFETY
ASUO continued to prioritize student safety through a variety of successful advocacy projects. The Campus Night Walk had 115 student attendees, who logged over 140 lighting and safety issues within the UO mapping system. ASUO distributed 1,000+ Fentanyl test strips to the student body - double last year's Naloxone kit distribution. The ASUO-led Party Registration program - now officially a permanent program under the division of student life - also continues to improve student safety, with dozens of parties registered this term, resulting in zero citations issued to students.

I-FEE PROCESS
ASUO began its yearly budget-setting process by voting on benchmarks to set the stage for the remainder of the budget season. Legislative officers are meeting with ASUO-funded programs and departments to best allocate funding based on their impact on student life. Senate is finalizing financial priorities, highlighting their top goals for fiscal responsibility for this year.

STREET FAIRE
The Fall Street Faire made a successful return during week 3 of the term, providing a vibrant and engaging campus experience for students and community members. ASUO officers enjoyed connecting with students at the faire through tabling and volunteering. The ASUO events team has begun planning for Spring Street Faire and is exploring ways to improve the faire even further.

ASUO FAIR PAY
ASUO voted to decrease the discrepancy between ASUO officer pay and student organization leader pay by lowering ASUO officer stipends and increasing stipends for student organization leaders. With the intention of making the stipend model more equitable, ASUO formed a “Committee on Stipend Equity” dedicated to investigating how to better reward, encourage, and support student leaders.
UPCOMING IN WINTER TERM

THERMAL HEATING PROJECT
ASUO firmly supports the heating option that reduces carbon emissions the most in the long term, regardless of campus disruption. ASUO will continue supporting student advocacy to electrify campus and is committed to advocating for climate action. ASUO firmly believes that the University of Oregon has the unique opportunity to be a leader in transitioning away from fossil fuels and assisting the state in meeting climate goals.

PERMANENT HUNGER SOLUTIONS
ASUO is working with the Basic Needs program to advocate for an on-campus food pantry. Data from the HOPE survey conducted in winter 2023 showed that 38% of students face food insecurity issues, demonstrating an alarming need for additional food assistance services. ASUO will continue to advocate for funding from the state via the emergency needs package to ensure all students have what they need to succeed at the University of Oregon.

SHAPING A CAMPUS OF BELONGING
ASUO will continue to prioritize fostering a campus of belonging for all students. In the coming terms, we will continue engaging in open dialogue with students through UO Onward, tuition public forums, and engagement events. We aim to listen to, elevate, and amplify student concerns such as setting specific university goals for diversity, equity, and inclusion as well as prioritizing student facing resources like basic needs and financial aid. We will leverage our high levels of engagement to bring the student voice into the university’s decision making processes.

SUBJECT: University of Oregon Senate Update, December 4-5

1. Potential GTFF strike

During the Fall term, the University Senate has actively planned for and managed academic continuity during the potential GTFF strike.

The Senate has served as a forum for debate and information resources; most importantly, it has served to clarify misinformation and it has taken responsibility to ensure academic integrity and an orderly plan for students during this challenging time.

This debate has been exceptionally time-consuming and has brought to light the stark philosophical differences that many faculty members, students, administrators, and other interested parties have about the meaning of academic integrity and the responsibility a university has to its students during a labor action.

On the one hand, it has been frustrating that nearly all of the Senate’s time has been spent on this issue, but it shows that the Senate is a vital forum for the crucial discussions and decisions made on campus, and it is a critical role we play.

As we move forward, the Senate will work on performing a comprehensive debrief of the academic continuity plan and use that information to make sure we are better prepared for the next academic disruption. This work will begin with a discussion of new legislation that aims to significantly modify the existing academic continuity plan based on feedback from Senators. It is crucial to be willing to change and the Senate to do so when necessary.
2. Interinstitutional Faculty Senate

The Senate elected Senator Pedro Garcia-Caro, Associate Professor of Roman Languages, as our Senator representative to the IFS. Our UO IFS constituency comprises the Senate President, the Senate Vice-President, and a UO Senator. We also elected an alternative who could attend if needed, Senator Andiel Brown, Department of Music, Instructor of Gospel Choirs and Ensembles. Senate leadership is also considering hosting an IFS meeting in Eugene during the Spring term.

3. Faculty Service Equity

The Faculty Service Equity working group has met twice to develop a system measuring faculty members' service commitments. We have developed principles to guide the metrics: transparency, equity, accountability, and support. The quantitative measuring tool is based on the Senate Service Report’s best practices – a report that took two years to develop. The measuring device is a matrix that identifies time commitment, scale – department, college, university – and type of service. The quantitative measures will be complemented by a qualitative narrative describing the “invisible” or non-promotable tasks that disproportionately fall on the shoulders of women and faculty of color.

The working group is chaired by the Senate President, Gerard Sandoval; two members from the Provost Office, Renee Irvin and Troy Elias; a Senator, Sara Mason; a former department head, Jack Boss of Music; and the President of the faculty union, Mike Urbancic. It is truly a collaborative effort with buy-in from various stakeholders on campus.

4. Legislation on the horizon

Military mobilization orders

We are developing a policy addressing class absences for mandatory drills, training requirements, or mobilization orders by our National Guard and military Reserve Students. We have no university policy that outlines how faculty should accommodate these students. There is a policy addressing deployment requirements by the State of Oregon. Still, there needs to be clear legislation on National Guard soldiers called upon to help with fires or any other emergency.
Academic Policies

The Senate is working with the Office of the Provost to pass academic-related policies on student grievances, academic freedom, faculty compensation, and other vital issues. The Senate will also work closely with the Provost to participate in UO’s Spring accreditation visit.

The policy-making process is a joint effort between UO administration and the Senate that ensures that the Senate has an impactful role in all academic decision-making and is helping maintain a positive sense of collaboration that continues to grow stronger.

Board of Trustees | Resolution: Adoption of Amendments to Board Policy on Retention and Delegation of Authority
05 December 2023
Board of Trustees of the University of Oregon
Policy on Retention and Delegation of Authority

Preamble

As provided in ORS 352.025, the Legislative Assembly has found that the State of Oregon will benefit from having public universities with governing boards that provide transparency, public accountability and support for the university and act in the best interests of both the university and the State of Oregon as a whole.

As provided in ORS 352.029, the Board of Trustees manages the affairs of the university by exercising and carrying out all of the powers, rights and duties that are expressly conferred upon the board by law, or that are implied by law or are incident to such powers, rights and duties.

The president is also the executive and governing officer of the university, except as otherwise provided by statute or action of the governing board. Subject to the supervision of the governing board, the president of the university has authority to direct the affairs of the university.

As provided in ORS 352.146, the president and professors constitute the faculty and as such have the immediate government and discipline of a university with a governing board and the students therein, except as otherwise provided by law or action of the Board of Trustees. The faculty may, subject to the supervision of the Board and ORS 352.089 prescribe the course of study to be pursued in the university and the textbooks used.

Nothing in this Policy affects any collective bargaining agreement entered into prior to the adoption of this Policy.

To the extent permitted by law, the Board may review and intervene in any and all aspects of the University; modify any policy, standard, or directive; amend or rescind any existing policy, standard or directive; and enact and issue such policies, standards and directives as it deems proper for the University. 3.4 The Board Chair will submit recommendations to the Governor for the at-large positions. Recommendations are based on a holistic view of the Board, its priorities, and the skills, characteristics, experiences, geographic diversity, and perspectives that will contribute to a well-rounded, effective, and collegial Board.

Board of Trustees Self-Evaluation Policy

The Board of Trustees of the University of Oregon (the “Board”) acknowledges that to best fulfill its responsibility to effectively govern the University, it holds itself to high standards of performance and professionalism. To achieve these standards, the Board commits itself to regular self-evaluation that will benefit the University of Oregon.

Section 1- Commitment to self-evaluation

1.1 The Board will regularly perform self-reflective assessments of its work.

1.2 The evaluation process should focus on ensuring that the Board, as public officials who hold a fiduciary responsibility for the University, are performing at their highest level of engagement, performance, and professionalism.

Section 2- Self-evaluation process

2.1 The Board’s Chair will be responsible for initiating the self-evaluation and setting the agenda and parameters of the process.

2.3 The Board may utilize an outside consultant to guide the process, analyze the results, and help facilitate the public comment portion of the review.
Program Approval: Ed.S. in Educational Leadership
Summary of Program and Requested Action

The UO seeks approval from the Board of Trustees for an Educational Specialist (Ed.S.) degree in Educational Leadership, offered through the College of Education. The new program would take effect Fall 2024.

Board approval is required before this new program is submitted to the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC).

The below information is provided by the program and the Office of the Provost. All appropriate University committees, the University Senate, and the Provost have approved the proposed program. Detailed information (e.g., associated coursework, exam schedules and degree obtainment progression timelines) as provided to these bodies, and which will be provided to the HECC, is available upon request.

This proposal represents a re-design of UO’s long-standing, very successful program to prepare educators to fill leadership roles within school district administration (e.g., Director of Special Programs, Director of Special Education, Director of Equity and Inclusion) and to lead school districts as superintendents. Our emphasis on evidence-based practice aligns well with the UO’s research mission and signature strengths, and our focus on preparing educational leaders to improve learning outcomes for all students (with a special emphasis on students with disabilities, English learners, and students from backgrounds historically under-represented in post-secondary education) directly addresses the UO’s strategic priorities related to diversity and cultural support of Oregon and its communities.

UO’s mission is:
“Serving the state, nation and world since 1876. The University of Oregon is a comprehensive public research university committed to exceptional teaching, discovery, and service. We work at a human scale to generate big ideas. As a community of scholars, we help individuals question critically, think logically, reason effectively, communicate clearly, act creatively, and live ethically.

Purpose
We strive for excellence in teaching, research, artistic expression, and the generation, dissemination, preservation, and application of knowledge. We are devoted to educating the whole person, and to fostering the next generation of transformational leaders and informed participants in the global community. Through these pursuits, we enhance the social, cultural, physical, and economic well-being of our students, Oregon, the nation, and the world.”

Several key ideas in the UO mission, in bold font above, align closely with our proposed program’s mission and purpose: to prepare people to be highly effective school leaders who can collaborate with others to improve outcomes for all students and who are committed to teaching, discovery, and service to those in our educational communities. The Ed.S. program in Educational Leadership will prepare compassionate, ethical educators to become transformative leaders committed to justice in America’s schools. This program will build a community of scholars and practitioners who help their community and schools to question critically, think logically, reason effectively, communicate clearly, and act creatively. Our graduates will be prepared to leverage opportunities as well as improve school performance in their areas of need, as indicated by school data and/or state and district goals/initiatives. It is our expectation that our graduates will represent the values of achievement, equity, good citizenship, and preparedness for future challenges.

2. What evidence of need does the institution have for the program?

   Our market analysis using Lightcast labor market data reveals a confluence of trends that demonstrate an ongoing need for licensed educational administrators in Oregon. Graduate level completions in this area at the master’s through doctoral level between 2017-2021 in Oregon were down 44% while job openings in this area between 2018-2022 were up 6.5% for kindergarten through secondary administrators, and 40% for all other education administrators.

   State data indicate that of Oregon’s 216 superintendents, 159 have been hired in the past five years. This indicates a high level of turnover and need. Not only is the overall pipeline inadequate, but the current pipeline also reflects a lack of diversity – only 24% of Oregon superintendents are women, and fewer than 5% are leaders of color.

3. Are there similar programs in the state? If so, how does the proposed program supplement, complement, or collaborate with those programs?

   There is one other Ed.S. program in Oregon that is offered through a private university. Our program differs in two critical ways. First, our program is offered online to facilitate the participation of working professionals throughout the state. Second, through our partnership with the Coalition of Oregon School Administrators (COSA), our students will receive EDLD 607 credits in conjunction with three COSA conferences that focus on topics that are essential to ensuring that the needs of all students are considered. The topics are Special Education Policy and Practices, Oregon School Law and Finance, and Multilingual & English Language Development Policy and Practices. The credits will be offered in partnership with Continuing and Professional Education per the MOU on file.

4. What new resources will be needed initially and on a recurring basis to implement the program? How will the institution provide these resources? What efficiencies or revenue enhancements are achieved with this program, including consolidation or elimination of programs over time, if any?

   Angela Burham, Academic Program Coordinator, is a classified UO employee who has supported the Educational Leadership licensure and degree programs for several decades. We anticipate her primary focus will be on students enrolled in the degree programs (M.Ed., Ed.S., and D.Ed.).

   We anticipate needing one additional Program Coordinator, whose focus will be on students enrolled in the licensure programs (Principal and Professional Administrator). COSA has a person currently serving in this role at 1.0 FTE, and we have built funding for this position into our budget.

   With our heavy emphasis on online instruction (both asynchronous and synchronous), we anticipate needing some additional IT support (such as the support previously provided to the EMPL programs by Adam Pritt).
